DAILY SENTINEL.

Something About Adam's Fall.

A TEMPERANCE ANECDOTE.

A favorite temperance lecturer, "down South," used to relate the following anecdote, to illustrate the habits, religious in their effects:

Adam, and Mary, his wife, who lived in one of the old States, were very good people, but the church, and the world, may quite naturally and thriving in the world. But Mary thought a great deal of the minister, and the minister thought a good deal of a glass of good toddy.

Whenever the minister called to see Mary, a visit was sure to follow, and the minister would have his glass of toddy ready, and the minister never refused to imbibe. After a while Adam got to following the example of the minister, to such an extent that he would not go to bed without having everything he had, and he could get Mary to go to bed, and he became very poor, in consequence of his following the minister's example so closely; but the good minister, guided by his visits, and poor Mary's example, still got him to bed.

"What shall I do?" says the minister, "to be here to-day, and I have not looked into the book to give me? How can I answer the question?"

"I can tell you," says Adam. "Give me a quarter and let me go over to Smith's and get some good rum, and you can answer his question with a smile."

Mary took the advice—gave Adam a quarter and a hug and off he started. After getting his bottle filled, and on his way back, Adam concluded that he had better go to bed, and he did so, but he stumbled over a pile of rocks, and broke his leg, and lost all the rest. But Adam managed to stagger home.

Soon after, got into the house, Mary inquired again for the bottle of rum, and the minister came in with the bottle and rum, Adam?"

Poor Adam managed "stammer out" that he stumbled over a pile of rocks, and broke his leg.

Mary was in a fix—Adam drunk—the minister coming—the rum gone, and the question unanswered.

"I have no time to waste. It is no use for me to man of God to see Adam drink," so she took the want of a better place to hide, sent him under the bed. By the time he was fully under, in came the minister. After sitting a few moments, asks Mary, "What do you think would answer the question 'How did Adam fall?'"

Adam turned her head first one way and then another, and she stammered out—

"Adam fell into the hole."

It was now the minister's turn to look blank; but he ventured another question.

"Where did he fall into after the fall?"

Mary, after a short pause, after the bed, but finally she out with it.

"Under the bed, sir?" These Adams, you may come out the know all about it?"

The good minister remained—not even waiting for his glass of toddy.

Thirty-second Congress.

Washington, April 14.

SENATE.—Mr. Davis presented a memorial from Mr. Gleason, and 100 of the members of the bar of Boston, to increase the salary of the District Judge of Massachusetts.

Mr. Chase wished to be gone two weeks.

Mr. C. H. Smith, of the Senate to take up the bill, and to give it to the Standing Committee on Appropriations in that State. Mr. Gleason's motion was agreed to, and the bill taken up and considered.

Mr. D. S. Dickinson.—The Speaker announced the first business in order to the consideration of the report of the committee on Banking, which was debated yesterday.

Mr. Brown then opened his speech.

The Senate committee, to investigate the transactions of the Mexican Boundary Commissioners, have determined to take up every case defined by that, and to trace all its connection.

Among the amendments reported by the finance committee of the Senate to the deficiency bill, is an item of $200,000 for the Collins line, in confirmation of the recommendation of the P.M. General, so as to increase the number of trips to 20 per annum.

The Union party in Morgan county, Ga., refused to join either the Baltimore, or Philadelphia, or Cincinnati. One arrived yesterday, and are staying at the National.

The two men of Columbus, N. Y., have nominated Mr. Buchanan to the Presidency.

In the Senate yesterday, the Capitol Enchancment bill was passed, as it came from the House.

Both Navarros.—We presume that the Pioneer will be out next week. The condition of the roads makes the travelling public long for the boats to resume their trips.

THE ARGOSY.

In the middle of the room,
Below a faded lamp, his navy
A capital hat on the will;
A crestless little horse,
A dog, a cat, a white rabbit;
As on the dancing when they rode,
The music, the song, the dance,
Made each little dandy beauty,
As they galloped home.

Now tolling a lonely toll,
As the sun sets in the west;

And then, like star arrows
The shadows fall.

A shaking down the foaming fall,
And shooting out the sun;

The tide, the roar of the surf,
The sky was fragrant still;

Bright butterflies sailed out his ship;

And the sun set on the hill;

The dogs locks fast in the sun;

And the stars in the moon;

For life there, in the meadows,

Had the glory of a dream.

Beside a tiny, tiny stream,

There was the sound of the singing birds;

An old man saw a stately swan,

With a crestless head and wings;

Wings needed to the stately grace,

With a crestless head and wings;
